Navigating The Complexities of Revenue Cycle Management!

With the growing body of regulations today, nephrology coding has become more complex. Practices must navigate not only a new level of required specificity but also additional requirements from payers. Needless to say, it can be daunting to stay on top of all of the guidelines for CPT, E&M, and ICD-10 coding — all while continuing to provide quality care for patients. Periodic reviews and education, however, can save you and your practice time, resources, and money.

Coding reviews can help nephrologists assess the accuracy and completeness of the documentation of services provided as well as to determine if that documentation supports the claims ultimately submitted for payment. It is critical to the success of a nephrology practice to be accurately reimbursed for services provided.

Transparency is key to trusting your billing company with your life's work. Tower's Billing and Collections staff communicate with clients continually, not just at the end of each month. You will have access to your Tower contact in real time via e-mail and phone.

We have a Certified Professional Coder on staff to make sure all billing procedures are appropriate for the specialized services nephrologists use and providers are billing to the highest levels possible.

We will work with your EHR system, which means no extra work for your staff. The collections process is tailored to your preferences.

We exhaust every avenue to ensure physicians are compensated for the valuable service they provide to patients. At the same time, we strive to ensure patients are not adversely affected. Internal audits are done periodically throughout the year and detailed reports are generated.
